News of the arrival in Rome of U.S. Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson and U.S. Army SOS Chief Lt. Gen Brehon Somervell, coupled with the pre-sence there of Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Yugoslav Partisan Leader Tito, pointed yesterday to an intensification of Allied activity in the Mediterran-ean theater.

Alled activity in the international ean theater. Algiers radio said "Mr. Church-ill, Marshall Tito and other Al-lied and Yugoslav personalities have met in Rome," and "the general feeling is that tremendous developments may be expected in general feeling is that tremendous developments may be expected in the Mediterranean," even as Al-lied planes pounded the south coast of France and a new Allied Commando force was officially reported to have destroyed a vi-tal bridge connecting two islands which guard the great Italian port of Fiume on the Adriatic. Eighth Army troops were not yet reported in Florence, follow-ing the announced evacuation of the city by the Germans, who have withdrawn into the foot-hills before their mountain-but-tressed Gothic Line.

Cite-known to townspeeple as "The Citadel"—has received American medical supplies in return for surrendering seven captured U.S. soldiers, who reported the "fort will hold out as long as the colonel's cognac and champagne houd out." This was revealed yesterday as one of the most dramatic sieges in the American campaign appeared to be nearing its end with a division's forward assault group: poised for a decisive thrust against "The Citaded," the only strongly-fortified German position holding out east of the Rance River. The exchange took place Friday when a German chaplain came over to the American lines and offered to appeal to the colonel com-manding the garrison to surrender. A true was called as the chaplain walked across to the gates of the citadel and told the colonel that defense would be hopeless and suicidal for his men. "I am a German soldier and German soldiers do not surrender," the colonel—a steel-willed, fanatical Nazi—replied. However, the colonel conceded that the garrison was desperately in need of medical supplies and said he would consider turning over seven U.S. doughboy: captured by his unit in return for first aid equipment.

They said German soldiers told them that most of the 500 or more members of the garrison were in favor of giving up, but the colonel and his staff were forcing them to con-tinue fighting. The Nazic were said to have large stocks of food and ammunition, apparently in anticipation of a long hold-out fight. Straight from the Front By Ernie Pyle Seripps-Howard Correspo

The afternoon was tense and full of caution and dire little might-have-

I was wandering up a dirt lane where infantry was squatting alongside in the ditch waiting their turn to advance. They always squat like that just behind the front.

Suddenly German shells started banging around us. I jumped into the ditch between a couple of soldiers and squatted. Shells were clipping hedgetops right over our heads and crashing in-to the next pasture.

Then suddenly one exploded, not with a crash but with a ring as though you'd struck a high-toned bell. Debris of burned wad-ding and dirt came showering down over us. My head rang and my right ear couldn't hear anything.

5 Minutes From Death

HE shell had struck behind us twenty feet away. We'd been saved by the earthen bank of hedgerow. It was the next day before my ear returned to normal.

A minute later a soldier crouch-ing next in line a couple of feet away turned to me and said, "Are you a war correspondent?" I said I was and he said, "I want to shake your hand," and he reached around the bush and we shook hands shook hands

That's all either of us ever said. It didn't occur to me until later it was a sort of unusual ex-perience. And I was so addled by the close explosions that I even the close explosions that I even forgot to put down his name. A. few minutes later a friend of mine, Lt. Col. Oma Bates, of Gloster, Miss., came past and said he was hunting our new bat-talion command post. It was sup-posed to be a farmhouse about a hundred yards from us. So I got up and went with him. We couldn't find it at first. We lost about five minutes walking see. It really is frightening. Our cwn shells were whanging over-head and hitting just beyond. German shells tore orchards around us up. Machine gunning was all around and carryover was all around and carryover was all around and carryover bullets zipped through trees above.

I could tell by their shoulder petches that soldiers near me were from the division to our right and I wondered what they were doing here Then I heard one of them say, "This is a fine fculup for you I knew that heu-tenant was getting lost.
